

The Future and Benefits of Non-Recourse Financing in Healthcare

GROWING ENROLLMENT in High Deductible Health Plans

This creates a situation where even patients that have employer-sponsored health insurance may need financial assistance or innovative payment options in order to pay their portion

Increasingly, employed individuals are moving toward high deductible health plans (defined as patient responsibility over $1350)

Less than a quarter of Americans said they could afford an unexpected bill of $2,000 or more

1 in 3 patients report that they cannot afford an unexpected medical bill over $100

These numbers show that many patients moving to high deductible health plans will be unable to pay their bill

More likely than not, patients who are employed and insured will need a solution for paying their bill, from your front office staff

GET TO KNOW What Patients Want

92% of patients would like to know what their patient responsibility is in advance of service

Technology has made paying for goods and services incredibly convenient – in turn, this has increased consumer demand for a variety of payment options
